UF 2017 Student Programs

Explorations in Biomedical Research

Two-week research program for students entering grades 11 and 12 from July 16-28

Cost: $1000 commuter; $2000 residential

This program focuses on translational research, from discovery-based research to clinical therapeutics. This program connects high school students to researchers in interdisciplinary biomedical sciences to promote interest in and preparation for bioscience careers.

Florida Youth Institute

One-week residential program for students entering grades 11 and 12 from July 9-14 OR July 16-21

Cost: $350

FYI immerses students in various agriculture, life science, and natural resources disciplines to stimulate interest in and an appreciation for the range of college majors and career opportunities available in these areas. This program is sponsored by the UF College of Agricultural and Life Sciences.

Humanities and the Sunshine State: Florida Water Stories

One-week residential program for students entering grades 11 and 12 from June 11-17

Cost $350

For this program, selected participants will explore how Florida's past has shaped the present and how today's actions affect the future of the state. Planned activities include visits to special collections, field trips to local Florida landmarks, and social activities at the university. Support for this program was provided by the Humanities Council, Center for the Humanities and the Public Sphere and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Research in Environmental Toxicology

Two-week research program for students entering grades 11 and 12 from July 16-28

Cost: $1000 commuter; $2000 residential

This program connects university researchers and students to promote interest in and preparation for environmental science-related careers. Students will engage in a series of activities which highlight the relationship between biological, chemical, and engineering processes needed to mitigate current environmental concerns.

Science Quest

One-week themed residential program for students entering grade 10 from June 25-30 OR July 9-14

Cost: $850 per session

This program immerses students in various science disciplines to stimulate their interest and appreciation for the range of college and career opportunities available in science. Students will attend a variety of lectures and demonstrations, visit research laboratories and other facilities, and perform multiple science experiments. Students may attend one or both weeks of Science Quest, each with its own individual theme: biological sciences and physical sciences.

Student Science Training Program

Seven-week residential research experience for students entering grade 12 from June 11-July 29

Cost: $4500

SSTP is research program for students considering medicine, math, computer, science, or engineering careers. The program emphasis is research participation with a UF faculty and his or her research team. Students engage in the ongoing research of the faculty-mentor for 30 hours/week, attend a lecture series on current research topics, and participate in a UF honors seminar class.
